VOL. 72 NO. 52 | CANYON, TEXAS | THURSDAY, MARCH 26, 1970 | 1 SECTION 10 PAGES | 10 CENTS

Using special gloves, Ed Collins, safety engineer from Pantex, takes apart and inspects a small tube found in Palo Duro Canyon and believed to be radioactive. Sheriff L. S. Johnston holds the container in a plastic bag.

'Radioactive' Tube Causes Nervousness

A bit of Atomic Age drama provided the Randall County Sheriff's Office with several hours of nervousness Monday.

Several youngsters stumbled on a small tube of material Sunday afternoon near water crossing 5 in Palo Duro Canyon. When they read the outside label of the container, they dropped the tube and sought out Park Superintendent Elon Baker.

Baker read the outside wrapper, picked up the tube, placed it in his pickup and summoned Sheriff L. S. "Slim" Johnston.

Johnston covered the tube with lead and returned to the Canyon courthouse. Then he began a waiting game.

From all outward indications, the tube was believed to contain radioactive material.

The tube was about an inch in diameter, about a foot long and was light weight.

It was covered with yellow paper.

An inscription on the paper read: "Danger Radioactive Material Danger. Exp. 702 6-2A Vial No. 6."

The tube was enclosed on both ends and across one end were the words "this end up."

"I guess if it's got anything in it, it's already got me," said the sheriff as he sat in his office holding the lead-encased tube.

Johnston was awaiting the arrival of a man from Pantex in Amarillo, a man he hoped would be able to tell whether the tube was really radioactive.

Over the phone the sheriff had tried to explain the tube's dimensions to the Pantex official. The official had no idea of the tube's contents or origin.

"The thing that bothers me is, are there more out there? Did it fall from an airplane?" the sheriff asked. "I don't know anything about the stuff."

Ed Collins, a safety engineer at Pantex, finally arrived carrying three instruments.

The sheriff took the tube from its lead coat, Collins pulled on a pair of gloves and began the work of surveying the tube.

First, he used one instrument to check for alpha particles. The needle rose a short distance and fell.

"If it's been laying out very long, pro-

Inquest Conducted In Car-Train Death

BY TROY MARTIN

Conflicting testimony climaxed a 3½-hour inquest Wednesday in the train-collision death of Mrs. Joe Newman of Hart.

Early in the inquest the engineer and brakeman of the Santa Fe Freight train involved in the collision testified that they saw a man in cowboy hat and glasses leap from the driver's side of the death car and run.

Newman later calmly related how he had been sleeping in the back seat of the car when he heard his wife scream and looked up to see the train lights bearing down on them.

He said he jumped out of the back seat, slammed the back door, opened the front door and tried unsuccessfully to save his wife.

Mrs. Newman was killed about midnight the night of Feb. 27 at the FM 168 (Buffalo Lake Road) and Santa Fe Railroad crossing at Umbarger.

First to testify at the inquest held in the court of Justice of the Peace W. A. "Bill" Wilson was Highway Patrolman James Gilbreath of Canyon who along with Patrolman Ron Boyter was the first officer at the scene.

Newman's attorney, Travis Shelton of Lubbock, was at first denied the right to cross examine but later Judge Wilson permitted him to question witnesses.

Wilson told Shelton that his client had not been charged. "But he's under suspicion," the Lubbock attorney rejoined.

Gilbreath said he arrived at the scene of the accident at 11:55 o-clock and that within 30 mintues had decided that it did not look like an ordinary accident.

Engineer Ralph Fogleson said the car stopped twice on the track. He said the first time it stopped its front wheels were on the south rail of the track on which his train was approaching at about 70 miles an hour.

He said the car then pulled up about two feet and stopped again. He testified that his engine was only about 800 feet away at the time and he could see clearly in the engine's headlight.

"A man with cowboy hat and glasses jumped out of the left front door," Fogleson declared. "When the car stopped the second time, immediately he got out of the car and ran."

Fogleson said he saw what appeared to be a woman in the middle of the front seat at the time of the impact.

"Could you tell whether the man got out of the front or back seat of the car?" asked Judge Wilson.

"Front!" replied Fogleson emphatically.

Fogleson said the crossing red light signals were flashing and the railroad crossing arms were down. He said the car came around the arms.

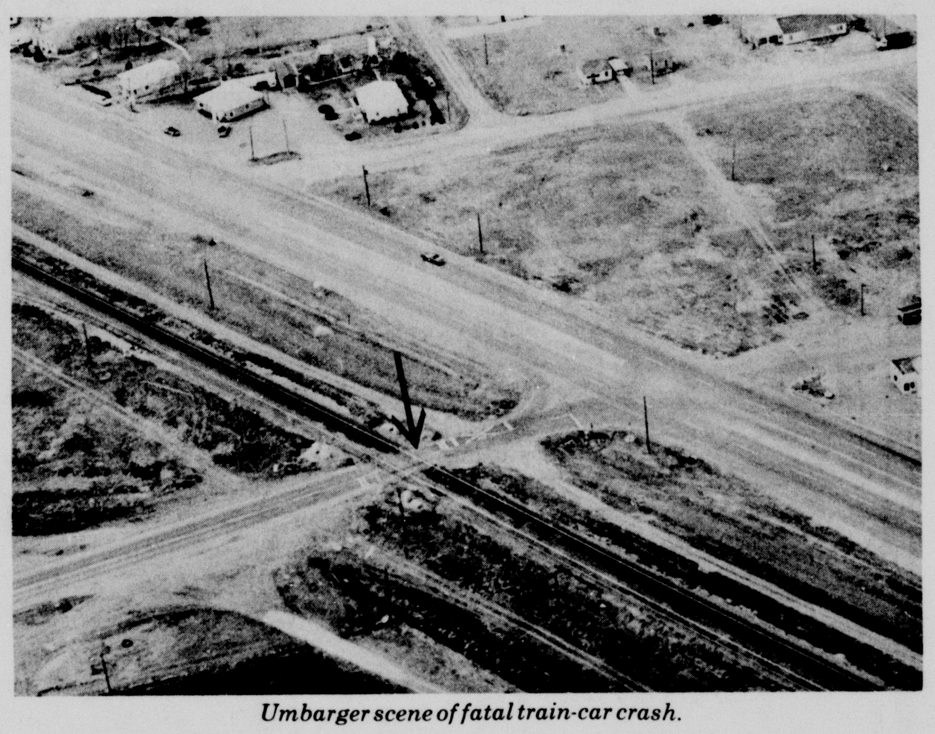

He testified that the man who fled never turned back to the car. "I saw it pretty plain," he declared.

Fogleson and Brakeman Conrad Williams both were riding in the engine cab looking out a window about eight feet above ground level.

Fogleson said the man he saw definitely did not get out of the back seat of the car. "He could have crawled over the back of the seat," Fogleson declared.

"Are you saying he was

If Strike Called, They're Uncertain

Postal Workers Don't Like Strike

Canyon members of the National Association of Letter Carriers are cool to the idea of a postal strike.If a national strike is called, they don't know what they'll do.

The members met Tuesday afternoon in closed session, but union president Hampton Lisle said the local is undecided on its action if a national strike is called.

"We don't know our status if a national strike is called," he said. "Nobody is ready to march out on a wildcat.

"We never had that in mind in the beginning. We'll just have to wait. If they call a national strike, we don't know where we stand."

Lisle said the local, which contains seven voting members and four associate members, may be cut off simply because they are members of the union.

He said the majority of the membership would probably recognize and stand behind the oath signed by postal workers which states they will not strike.

One other member of the union told The Canyon News, he felt the membership of the local would probably refuse to stand behind a national strike.

Several members of the local union attended a meeting Monday night of Amarillo's local.

The Amarillo membership voted unanimously to support national union leaders in efforts to settle the postal workers' differences.

Amarillo union president Russell Magnuson explained to the more than 200 postal workers--many of them from out-of-town--a resolution adopted by the national association.

The resolution called for an increase in maximum salaries from $8,500 to $11,000 spread over the next five years; retirement at 20 years; 100 per cent participation in insurance.

Magnuson said a cooling-off period for the union to work out negotiations with government began Monday.

Meanwhile in Canyon, the wildcat strikes in New York, New Jersey and Chicago have had little effect on local mail delivery.

Lisle said mail coming into the Canyon Post Office was about one-half the usual amount.

A few businesses were affected by the strike.

Mrs. Dorothy Parker of Dan's Fifth Avenue said she

Pantex Workers Explain County Welfare Request

Although on the agenda to make a request for welfare to commissioners court, representatives of the striking Pantex Metal Trades Council failed to show up for the court's Monday meeting.

Buddy Stoner, 3111 Nelson, Amarillo, said he made an inquiry of County Judge Carroll Brown about the possibility of some needy families among the strikers receiving federal food commodities in Randall County but dropped the matter when he learned that any recipient would have to sign a pauper's oath.

"That disqualified Pantex workers," Stoner delcared.

Stoner estimated that between 200 and 300 Pantex workers live in Randall County.

He said that when Cactus workers were out on strike some of the strikers received commodities. He said he began an investigation of such a possibility for Pantex strikers on his own and not as a representative of the union.

Stoner said he went first to the Texas Employment Commission and was referred to Potter County welfare. He said he knows of some of the people involved in the strike having drawn commodities in Potter.

He was referred by Potter County welfare to Randall County Judge Carroll Brown. He said he was told of the pauper's oath by Judge Brown.

"That disqualifies all our people," he says he told Judge Brown. "We won't pursue it any further."

Stoner reported that most of the Pantex workers have found supplemental work and are making ends meet while the strike is in pro-

Union Leader Finds Self In Tough Position

Hampton Lisle is a man caught in the middle.

For two years, he has been president of the local National Association of Letter Carriers. As such he has been thrust into a position he'd rather not be in.

He'd like to have a higher salary. But, he'd rather not strike.

Even though he was ired by President Nixon's use of the military to handle postal duties in New York, Lisle would rather not strike.

"Y'all aren't going to strike, are you?" a man asks as Lisle sips a soft drink in the drugstore.

"No, I don't think we will," Lisle answers.

Several more persons pass the counter. They ask the same question. They get the same answer.

Between the rock and the hard place. That's where Hampton Lisle is.

"They've got it tougher up there (in New York) than we do down here," he says. "I'm not real worried about the salary."

But, for Lisle the going has not been that easy.

He has served the post office 29 years and has now reached the top salary allowed.

"It was a pretty good job back then," he said. "I got 65 cents an hour.

"I made about $1,900 my first year and it would buy a lot. It'd buy more than the $6,000 I get home with now."

Like everyone else, the postal workers have been hard hit by inflation.

Lisle says he has more trouble now making ends meet that he had when all his children were at home.

"It's not getting any easier," he said, "and my family is not extravagant."

When Lisle first got his job with the post office, he bought his house. Since then he has not been able to buy any new furniture. He has bought only one new car since his employment.

So, like so many postal workers, he has become tired of a delay in salary increases.

The last raise he received was last year when postal

WT Helium Hopes Not Really Dead

West Texas State University's hopes for establishing helium research on campus may not be dead after all.

Dr. Emmitt Smith, WTSU vice president for research and development, said Monday that comments in Canyon's Sunday News by Harold Lipper "were merely statements by Lipper--they were not an official turndown by the Department of the Interior."

Lipper, assistant director for helium in the Department of the Interior, had said he will recommend the department give no funds for the transfer of Amarillo's helium research center to the Canyon campus.

Dr. Smith said Lipper's statement could be discouraging, but he maintains an optimistic attitude.

"Whether or not this is something which should discourage us is another problem," Dr. Smith said. "We had hoped the department would see fit to finance the research for three years while we made the transfer."

Dr. Smith and various civic leaders throughout the area went to Washington several weeks ago to meet with other Department of the Interior officials. They proposed that the helium research center, which is to cease functioning in Amarillo in late June due to federal budget cuts, be moved to WTSU.

Dr. Warren Brandt, director of the research center, expressed dismay last weekend at Lipper's remarks. He said he would term Lipper's statement "a rejection."

Dr. Smith was more opti-

C of C Women Eye Clean-Up

The women's division of the Canyon Chamber of Commerce took off in a run Tuesday night and the 28 members have decided to zero in on a city-wide clean-up campaign during April as their first project.

Mrs. Edith Nicholas, appointed president of the division at last week's chamber banquet, named a nominating committee and a by-laws committee.

The group will meet again at 7:30 p.m. April 7 in the First National Bank to elect officers, accept by-laws and plan the clean-up campaign.

In addition to formalizing certain necessary requirements, Mrs. Nicholas also outlined what she feels is the main objective of the women's division.

"I think the main goal is to sell the city of Canyon not only to its citizens but to non-residents and possible businesses," she said. "Our objective is to coordinate our plans with the Chamber of Commerce. They have work for us to do and I think we can do it."

Chamber President Eddie Knowles voiced the same opinion.

"We need you to help us," he said.

Mrs. Nicholas suggested that dues for the women's division be not less than $12 per year.

She noted that in Amarillo professional women only are allowed to join the women's division, and she said they have few members.

She pointed to Lubbock

Tourist Committee Outlines Programs

A three-point program has been initiated by the Tourist Development Committee of the Canyon Chamber of Commerce.

These include (1) development and printing of a Canyon recreation brochure, (2) promotion of the Land of Coronado billboards and (3) flying of a blue and red flag with a white star.

JoZach Byrd has been appointed chairman of the committee. Committee members include Raymond Raillard, B.C. Taylor, Cecil Billingsley, Mrs. Fles Harper and C. Boone McClure.

Total expenditure on the three projects is expected to come to $2,636.50.

Printing of brochures will come to about $525. The billboards for the Land of Coronado promotion will cost Canyon $650 and the flags will cost $1,461.50.

Easter Activities Varied

Various activities are planned for the city this weekend as youngsters are dismissed from public schools today through Tuesday.

Students at West Texas State University have been out of classes all week and don't return to campus until Tuesday morning.

Beautiful weather during mid-week saw off-duty college instructors and students working in city yards.

Highlighting the weekend will be a community Easter Egg Hunt.

The hunt will be sponsored by the local Veterans of Foreign Wars post, according to commander Doice "Shorty" Flowers.

Formerly sponsored by the Canyon Jaycees, the hunt will begin at 2:30 p.m. Sunday in Conner Park.

The hunt will be divided into three divisions according to age--0-4, 418, and 8-12 --with prizes to be given for the most and least numbers of eggs taken home.

All city children are invited to attend the hunt.

Religious services in the city's churches will be preceded Sunday by an annual Easter Sunrise Service, scheduled for 6 a.m. in Pioneer Amphitheatre in Palo Duro Canyon.

The Rev. Ivan Adams, pastor of the First Christian Church, will be speaker for the service. Canyon High School's Choir will present special music.

Sponsored by the Canyon Christian Youth Council, the service is open to the public.

A theatre clean-up will be held Saturday and those interested may join in the preparations.

Entrance to the park will be free for those attending the sunrise services.

by Troy Martin FROM THE CANYON RIM

A delegation of Randall County people will appear before the State Highway Commission April 1 in behalf of the most important road proposed for the county since the expressway was built.

The group will request an overpass at Hunsley Road north of Canyon connecting it to a road proposed to join U.S. 87 and South Washington about 6 miles away.

This road is vastly important because of the growth of West Texas State University. It would be one more badly needed access to the campus by way of Washington from Amarillo.

Some time in the future a road might connect this proposed road to Buffalo Bowl and thus alleviate the traffic bottleneck there.

The project may require that the county put up some money for its construction. If this is necessary, I think it is worth it.

The Tourist Development Committee of the Chamber of Commerce seems to be moving. The committee proposes to spend about $2,600 this year in encouraging tourism.

This will be money well spent. The tourist dollar is becoming more important to Canyon every year.

You can ask any service station operator or cafe owner along 23rd Street if this isn't true.

Rhett Plank and Jim Killingsworth are doing their best to meet the narcotics problem in Canyon.

They have just completed a series of lectures on narcotics before a group of junior high girls and are making appearances at various churches in the community each Sunday.

Rhett Plank, a serious young Canyon lawyer, is deeply concerned about the problem as is his partner in the project, Jim Killingsworth. They represent the Southwest Council on Drug abuse.

At present they are borrowing film for their lectures but hope to raise enough money to buy their own in the near future.

Rhett says one of the greatest dangers of all drugs used in this area is that they are bootleg. "A lot of it comes from south of the border," he said.

Plank pointed out that a young user usually has no means of knowing his tolerance for a certain drug. Bootleg drug dosage is also uncertain and a user could easily take a fatal dose.

He noted that much of the LSD used by young addicts is made in underground laboratories. He said the formula is rather simple and the drug fairly easy to concoct.

Plank said that although marijuana may not be physically addictive the user of it becomes psychologically dependent upon it. He also said that it is often the forerunner of a stronger drug.

Rumor has it that a lot of marijuana being used in this area comes in via the US mail.

Robert Morris, candidate for the Republican nomination for the Senate, will be in Canyon today.

Blaut Is Drafted By Bulls

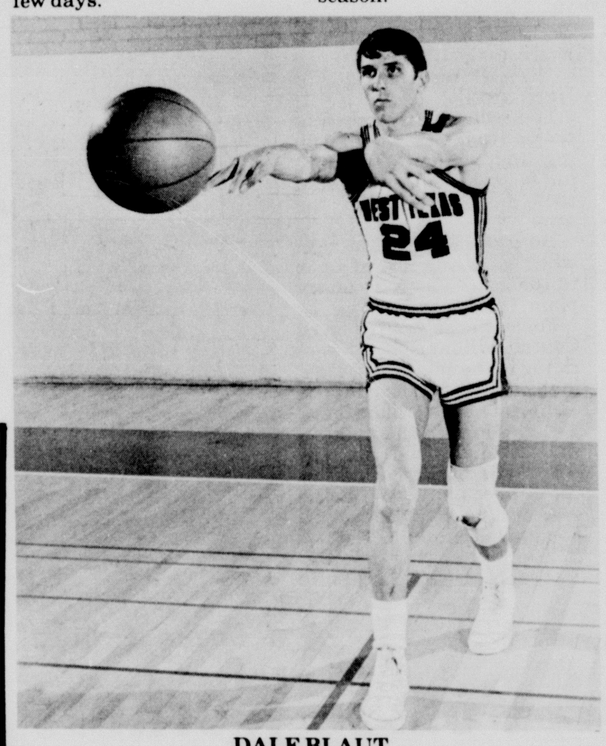

Dale Blaut, West Texas State University's well-rounded basketball player, was drafted Monday by the Chicago Bulls of the National Basketball Association.

Blaut, a guard, led WTSU scoring with a 22-point average during last season.He is the ninth leading scorer in WTSU history, even though he played just two years.

As a junior, Blaut scored 11.3 points per game and went with the team to the National Invitation Tournament.

Blaut was an All-American at Hackensack, N.J., in high school and then continued a great career at Murray State, earning an Olympic tryout following his sophomore year.

A 6-3, 180-pounder, Blaut hit his best for the career when he hit 40 points last season.

Our World

BY ANN BROWN

The rebellion that began on the campus of the University of California at Berkely apparently ushered in the second American revolution. The people who predicted that chaos, anarchy, and revolution would follow in the wake of student riots--if the rioters were allowed to go unpunished--were branded as radicals, fools, and worse.

Anonymous letters dated March 9, 1970, were mailed to the police and officials of several northern California counties, declaring a "state of revolution" would begin in a few days. The threats were signed by a group called "LARGO"(Liberation Army, Revolutionary Group Organizations).

The letters warned of (punitive action against the U.S. federal forces and municipal forces on a limited scale from the City of San Francisco on the south, to the Oregon border on the north" to the state lines on the east and west.

LARGO said the first attacks will be on federal installations, and "civilian casualties will be kept at a minimum." The writers described themselves as "fighting men and women dedicated to the overthrow of the U.S. Government by force."

The California Highway Patrol, border patrol, sheriffs, police force, and military forces were singled out for annihilation. (Let us hope that LARGO has underestimated the American military.)

"Civilians" were advised to identify themselves to LARGO "soldiers" so their safety could be given due consideration.

The war effort is to be gradually accelerated until the U.S. Government falls. When these threats are added to the recent wave of bombings and bomb threats from coast to coast, general lawlessness, and crime that is increasing 12 times faster than the population, it looks as if we should have listened to the "radicals." Have we waited too long?

Where lies the blame for our current problems?

Is it the government as LARGO contends?

Granted, our government, with its oppressive tax structure, wasteful bureaucracies, courts that obstruct justice, and destructive HEW and foreign policies, has little resemblance to the Republic our forefathers gave us. But until it can be changed through the due process of orderly elections, should we not work and pray for its survival?

Is the organized church to blame for our crumbling society as the skeptics--and many professing Christians--contend?

Whatever its shortcomings, if we kill the organization, the church will die. Who wants to live in a nation without churches?

Are our schools the hotbed of anarchy as so many parents contend?

Granted, the public-school, college, and unversity teachers who scorn the eternal verities, and deny the very existence of the Master of the Universe, have damaged the society that supports them. (Although, one such teacher is too many, that kind is still probably in the minority.) They will probably find themselves among the first victims if the anarchists they have fostered ever gain control.

If the teachers who scoff at all the moral and spiritual values that built our nation, and disparage the pioneers and the Fathers of our Country, are successful in their destructive propaganda, we will have national chaos and anarchy--then who will pay their salaries?

If the crusading lawyers are successful in their efforts to persuade young men to dodge the draft, workers to strike, and students to burn down the colleges and defy the laws of the land, who will pay their fat fees and provide food for their tables when total chaos comes?

It is difficult to alarm modern young people. They have been conditioned to confusion, welfare, and war by their constant presence. Chaotic conditions have become a way of life.

If every man were his own authority, and free to obey only the laws he approved, what would prevent the thief from taking what he pleased, the rapist from choosing his victims at will, and the murderer from shooting anyone who got in his way?

The churches, schools, and government do indeed build the super-structure of our society, and are the primary targets of the revolution; but are they the real cause of our social collapse?

(The crumbling foundation will be discussed next week.)

TAXES

Citizens of Canyon, with foresight, approved a 1% city sales tax to begin April 1, 1970. This enabled the present City Commission to lower the tax rate to $1.45 per $100 valuation.

There should be no reason for a tax increase in the near future. When the full potential of the sales tax is realized, lower adjustments in other taxes may be possible.

Why Did Sheriff R.H. Sanford Kill Himself ?

BY SAM ALLRED

When two gunshots penetrated the stillness of a pleasant summer morning in Canyon City 55 years ago, a mystery was born that intrigues the logical or plain curious even now.

The date was June 15, 1911, the location the Randall County Courthouse. The mystery? Sheriff R. H. Sanford sat in his office chair and put two bullets from his service revolver into his chest.

The fact is recorded in a slim volume called "Randall County Inquest Record No. 1," and the then Justice of the Peace, W. J. Redfearn left little doubt about the known facts of the case.

"I find that the deceased, R. H. Sanford, came to his death by a gunshot wound inflicted by himself."

The record also shows that Sanford was 38-years-old, a large man 6-feet-2, and the possessor of many friends in Randall County. Why did he shoot himself?

Now the event is hazy with time and rumors, and even the earliest residents of the county find it difficult to remember exactly what happened that summer day in the expanding community known as Canyon City.

Official records of the period seem to be purposefully vague, offering even more proof the sheriff had many friends who would not want the case available to the prying eyes of the public.

The city commission minutes for the first meeting after the incident records only that Sanford died in office and an audit was ordered for his books. The minutes for June 26, 1911, show that the firm of R. A. Terrill and C. N. Harrison performed the audit and submitted it to the commission, but the record does not show the results of the audit.

In addition to being sheriff of the small county, Sanford was also the tax assessor-collector, but the obvious initial conclusion that will be drawn cannot be justified by any facts. The lines of the mystery are drawn when you ask current residents about the incident.

"My father was appointed by the commission to fill out the sheriff's unexpired term," said Worth Jennings. "I do not really know what happened. There was talk at the time that Sanford killed himself because he was in love with a woman who rejected him just before their marriage. But that is just an old rumor. I don't really know."

Evidence will show there may have been more to the story than just rumor. Others now will say Sanford built a new house for a bride he never was to marry.

Records show the sheriff applied for building permits totalling $3,500 in 1910 "for two houses." One of them still remains at the intersection of 2nd and 13th in modern-day Canyon.

The house is no longer in an elite neighborhood and it has the unkempt smell of disuse and neglect. But it is a solid house and was obviously meant to house a family for a lifetime. The Randall County News, March 3, 1911:

"Sheriff R. H. Sanford built a very pretty bungalow on (obscured) during the autumn. The bungalow is 36 x 44 has a porch across the entire front and one to the rear of the house. The house has 8 rooms and is modern in all respects... Mr. Sanford also built a good barn and has put much work on his lawn."

The newspaper ran a picture of the house and it looked much as it does today. Hardly a project for a man contemplating suicide. But in his brief last note Sanford gives the house major importance in the mystery.

The note was sealed and addressed to O. E. Cannon "of the First National Bank," a personal friend of the sheriff:

"I have conveyed the home place to Miss Lee and want you to stay there and look after the place until you make some arrangement with her... I have no explanation to make. Goodby to all. R. H. Sanford."

The newspaper edition following his death said only that "Miss Lee" was Miss Lee Taylor and that "Miss Taylor has been an assistant in his office for a number of years. She is spending her vacation at present at home in South Texas."

So much for one side of the story, as the other side now gains momentum.

The paper reported that the audit had found "a shortage of $1,000 in Sanford's books," $518 for 1909 and $482 for 1910. Cut and dried? Not quite.

". . .greater part of the 1909 balance, however, is due to mistakes in the books which had not been found by the county commissioners when they checked up for the year." A conclusion was drawn by the newspaper but one that modern readers would find unsatisfying:

"The city officials do not consider that Mr. Sanford took his life on account of this shortage in his books, as over $500 was found by the committee. Other matters of more importance must have been bothering Mr. Sanford at the time."

The paper editorialized that even if Sanford had been short $500 in his books, he could have borrowed that amount of money from the bank or a number of close friends. The report of his death, dated the following Friday, seems to bear this out:

". . .the cry of Clerk M. P. Garner (who discovered Sanford) that Sheriff R. H. Sanford had shot himself brought a hush of terror and sadness over the business part of the city. . .few men in Canyon or the Panhandle so well and favorably known. . ."

But a headline on May 5, 1911, a little over a month before the sheriff committed suicide, reported "perhaps the most unreasonable theft that ever occurred in the city."

Someone stole the delinquent tax rolls from the commissioner's courtroom, which put a fast halt to certifying the tax rolls.

"The commissioners had almost completed the work, and could have drawn off their balances and had a settlement with Mr. Sanford."

The newspaper recorded that Sanford would be able to replace the records in "about a week," but the May 12 issue said it had not been done because "Tax Collecter Sanford is unable to procure the necessary blanks.,"

The newspaper placed Sanford on the front page for the last time shortly afterward and said "the case of his suicide still remains the greatest mystery Canyon has ever known." The following week the 15.14 inches of rain Canyon had received since February occupied the prominent spot on the front page.

There the mystery stands, after all this time. Why did Sheriff Sanford shoot himself twice with his .48 Colt? Was it unrequited love? Was there a serious shortage in his accounts? Or was it something else altogether?

Henderson Home Now

Captain Tommy Henderson, US Army, arrived in Dallas this week after a year's tour in Vietnam where he was joined by his wife and two children from Nocona.

The Hendersons then travelled to Canyon where they will spend a few days in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Henderson.

EAGLES WIN DUMAS DISTRICT MEET

The Canyon Eagles handily defeated all bidders for the 1-AAA District Meet in Dumas Saturday with a team total of 312. A 13-point spread over Second Place Dumas who totaled a 325. Randall Burton, 16-year-old Junior Eagle, won Meet Medalist honors with a four-over-par 76. Teammates Joe Ziegler had a 78; Mike Shadix and Larry Daniels both carded 79s; and Richard Thompson shot an 80. Burton's super round included an out-of-bounds on #9; Shadix just missed sharing the medalist title by taking a double bogey on #9 with an O. B. It was a time to pass out the praise and Coach Brotherton was at no loss for words. The Coach announced that the Canyon Country Club would be the center of attention for the District's second Meet on Monday, March 30th, starting at 9:00 a.m. The Club, normally closed on Mondays, will be open on account of the Easter Holidays.

GEORGIA SCOTCH

All-American Basketball Star, J. W. Malone, and his partner Wally Cayton took Low Gross honors when they fired a 31 Sunday in the C. C. C.'s Georgia Scotch Golf Tournament which totaled 52 players. Coming in one stroke back was the team of Porter Vaughn and Gene Read. Canyon High School's duo Larry Daniels and Randall Burton carded a 33 for Third Place honors. There was a tie for First and Second Low Net between the teams of Charles McClure-Steve Self and Chester Reynolds-Guy Bufkin who both scored 26s. Tied for Third Low Net were Eagle B-Team linksters Mark Read and Bill Lee; and the husband-and-wife team of Ray and Theda Carnahan with 27s.

EASTER EGG HUNT

The Club's Annual Easter Egg Hunt is scheduled for Saturday, March 28th. There will be three classes: (1) Toddlers to age 4 will start at 10:00 a.m.; (2) 5 years to 7 years at 10:15 a.m.; and (3) 8 years to 10 years (including all fourth graders) at 10:30 a.m. Members only.

REMEMBER APRIL 5th

The Canyon Country Club will be having its Spring Celebration Sunday, April 5th and all Panhandle residents and their guests are invited to attend. The Cabins will be open from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. The Club House and Golf Course open all day. Free coffee and donuts will be served by the Ladies' Golf Association. A Covered Dish Supper and Presentations are scheduled for that night after the Directors' Day Golf Tournament. The tournament will be an 18-hole; half handicap Invitational; $5.00 entry fee. For further information please call Al Forrester, Umbarger 499-2595.

SHORT PUTTS

The C. C. C. will be open Monday, March 30th. Joe Ziegler, son of Mr. & Mrs. Jack Ziegler, has the dubious honor of having the lowest club handicap with a FOUR (figure out how much spot you will have to have boys!) Weldon Trice, Asst. Dean of Life at West Texas shot a 36. Mrs. Mariellen Garner, our Most Improved Woman Golfer for 1969, shot a 48 this weekend. Jim Westfall, father of Miss Jan Westfall, Miss Canyon Second Runner-up Winner, trailed in with a 91 Sunday--looks like he might be right for picking. Sam Jolly, Roger Burton and Bill Lee are out practicing and keeping the A-team on their toes. Brad and Bryan Garner are looking more like Golf Pros than I do. It is rumored that Charles Donnell and Ross Craig has challenged C. C. C.'s fishing champion John Williams, and Bill Haggard to a George Scotch duel. Art photography, spanning a wide spectrum of moods and the subject matter is currently on display in the Lounge at C. C. C. by Pat Britain.

Staff Member In Canyon To Set Plans

A member of Gov. Preston Smith's staff came to Canyon Tuesday and began laying plans for an April 29 visit by the governor.

City Clerk George Loudder said Jim Fuller met with he and City Manager Howard Northcutt and discussed plans for the day-long workshop.

Canyon will host between 250 and 700 city and county officials April 29 when the governor explains his Texas Communities Tomorrow program.

Loudder said tentative plans call for seven state agencies, as yet unnamed, to present programs on services they have to offer small cities.

Smith is to be luncheon speaker.

The state agencies programs are to be in the morning and informal workshops are set for the afternoon.

Savage Is Extradited

Bobby Wayne Savage, 19 years old, 704 North Grant, Amarillo, has been placed in Randall County jail on a charge of selling marijuana.

Savage was extradited from California, according to Randall County Criminal District Attorney George Dowlen.

Dowlen said Savage is charged with sale of marijuana to an Amarillo Police Department undercover agent Jan. 13 at a drive in in South Amarillo.

Savage is being held in lieu of $7,500 bond.

Bridges Hearing This Week

Preliminary hearing for Richard Dean Bridges, 23 years old, charged in Randall County in two narcotics cases, is scheduled for the latter part of this week in 181st District Court.

Bridges is charged on one count with the sale of a narcotic drug and on another count with using a minor in giving away a narcotic drug.

District Attorney George Dowlen said he expects a motion for a change of venue when the preliminary hearing is held.

Bridges was arrested Jan. 16 in a massive narcotics raid in Amarillo. Amarillo police and the Randall County Sheriff's Department employed a young housewife to pose as a teenager to assemble the evidence which led to the arrest of some 15 suspects.

Bridges already has drawn an eight year prison term after being convicted in Potter County of sale of LSD, according to Potter County District Attorney Tom Curtis.

Bridges also is charged in Potter County with sale of marijuana and using a minor to sell marijuana.

He remains in Potter County jail. Bonds in Randall County were set at $10,000 on each count and at $25,000 on each of two counts in Potter county for a total of $70,000.

Five Persons Are Arrested For Selling

Five persons, several of them from Oklahoma, were fined $25 each after spending the night in Randall County Jail Sunday on charges of selling without a license.

The five pleaded guilty to the charges and were released after appearing before Corporation Court Judge Burney Slack about 10 a.m. Monday.

They were arrested about 10:30 p.m. Sunday by Canyon Patrolman Jim Trosper following a complaint from a housewife.

The five were reportedly representatives of an Oklahoma City encyclopedia sales firm.

One of those charged told Judge Slack the five had not been told by the Oklahoma City company that a license is required to sell door-to-door in Canyon.

Arrested were Patricia Mae Marzlin, 18, of San Jose, Calif., Carl Lewis Banneister, 20, Houston, Dale Brederick Chamberlain, 23, of Oklahoma City, Andree A. Singley, 19, of Forgan, Okla., and Donna Jean Chamberlain, 20. of Oklahoma City.

For COLDS take 666

The challenge of being the only.

As any wise husband knows, no woman likes to be taken for granted. It's the little things that count, like remembering anniversaries, or bringing home flowers for no particular reason.

Like the wise husband we try not to take you, our customer, for granted. Being the only phone company in town, we make a special effort to be courteous, kind, considerate, and understanding.

The fact that we are the only phone company in town is a challenge. The challenge is "not to act like it."

Dear friends,

Man is a being who buries his dead with ceremony. This he does in all the nations and cultures of the world, whether civilized or uncivilized. We consider our American funeral rituals to be among the most sensible. Significantly, they stem from the same human need to memorialize and mourn the beloved dead as exists among people everywhere.

Respectfully,

T.S. Stevensons Take Trip To Mexico

Mr. and Mrs. T.S. Stevenson, Jr. have returned from a vacation in Acapulco and Mexico City.

In Acapulco, the Stevensons went deep sea fishing, on a fiesta yacht cruise, did some golfing and sightseeing in the native markets.

In cosmopolitan Mexico City, the Stevensons visited the Shrine of Guadalupe, patron saint of Mexico, which is a cathedral begun in 1525, demolished in 1573 and rebuilt and completed in 1667. Other places visited included the Pyramids of the Sun and Moon, Plaza de la Constitution, Metropolitan Cathedral, the Plaza of Three Cultures, the flower markets and Chapultepac Castle the palace of the Aztec emperors.

The Anthropology Museum, considered by many to be the number one archeological museum of the world, houses the entire history of all the tribes and races which make up present Mexico, according to the Stevensons. Included in the display is the famous 30-ton Aztec stone calendar along with the 167 ton statue of the rain God Thaloc and many other stone images, monoliths, cultptures and relics. The entire 8 million population city is filled with structures untouched by time, according to the Stevensons.

The trip for the Stevensons was a dealer award made by GMC Truck and Coach.

driving?" asked Shelton.

"I wouldn't swear he was driving," Fogleson said.

Williams told substantially the same story as that told by Fogleson.

Vita Mae Abbe, who runs a cafe just across the highway from the crossing, said she heard what she thought was a woman's scream about the time of impact.

She said the car proceeded onto the tracks in spite of flashing red lights and the guard arms being down.

Shelton at first refused to allow his client to testify.

He said officers had indicated by asking Newman to take a polygraph test that "this is accusatory."

"He will decline to testify," Shelton declared.

The attorney withdrew his objections after conferring with Judge Wilson and District Attorney George Dowlen.

Newman told of having worked with his wife at their insurance agency in Hart until about 4:30 the afternoon of Feb. 27 and then driving to Canyon to visit a daughter and to Northwest Texas Hospital to visit an uncle who was ill.

He said he and his wife left the hospital about 11 o'clock but were momentarily delayed while he helped a crippled cousin get into a car at the hospital. He testified that he and his wife then stopped at a doughnut shop and leisurely had coffee and doughnuts before proceeding on to Canyon.

In Canyon they drove by the daughter's home but did not stop when the found that the lights were off there.

At the edge of Canyon on the way to Umbarger, Newman testified, Newman became ill and let his wife drive while he lay down in the back seat.

He said he must have gone to sleep. He heard his wife scream and looked up to see the train bearing down. He said he leaped from the back seat and slammed the back door. He related that he then opened the front door of the car and tried to get his wife out.

He said he got her front feet out of the car but leaped backward at the very instant of impact.

He said he at first thought that both he and his wife had been struck by the train.

Under questioning, Newman related that he took out $50,000 travel policies on both himself and his wife Jan. 8 and then left on a trip for Denver Jan. 9.

He said this was not unusual. He testified that he and his wife had planned some trips and were even thinking of going to Canada in the summer and that through the years they have purchased travel policies.

The two Newman children were beneficiaries to the policies.

Judge Wilson asked if a payment on the policies was not made the day following Mrs. Newman's death. Newman explained that the check for the payment had been written Feb. 25 and was in an envelope addressed to a Dimmitt insurance agent. The envelope was in a suit pocket.

Newman's sister in Dimmitt picked up the suit on Feb. 28 to have it cleaned. She found the envelope in the pocket and mailed it.

District Attorney Dowlen declined to say that Newman has refused a polygraph test. "He has not taken one," Dowlen declared.

Dowlen said the case will be taken to a Randall County grand jury.

Judge Wilson said his findings as a result of the inquest will not be made public until a later date.

Rock Business Hobby And Retirement Income

J. G. 'Whitey' Voelm and family moved to a site just west of Canyon city limits in August 1969 and have now opened a "Quality Rock Shop" with overnight camping at the "Wagon Yard" in back.

Voelm, who formerly had his rock shop in Amarillo, said he moved here "to get his family into the country." He had only recently retired from Shell Oil Company when he bought the land, built his building and brought his own supply of rocks to the site.

"Rocks" began as a hobby for Voelm when he was just a child hunting arrowheads and pretty rocks. He then wanted to study mining geology--but along came the depression--and he went instead into petroleum geology. He later opened a hobby shop and kept up with his rocks and making of rock trinkets and jewelry.

"I buy rocks all the time," said Voelm. "I have to buy them in quantity to keep a supply on hand."

He stocks rocks from all over the world and orders sometimes by the ton, having only last year ordered a ½ ton of Montana Agate from wholesale rock dealers.

Voelm seldom has the opportunity to pick up any rock himself and buys in wholesale lots from all over the world for resale to local "rock hounds" and tourists, and to use in making unusual rock jewelry for sale.

He was the first president and organizer of the first rock club founded in Amarillo in 1952. The Caprock Gem and Mineral Society was disbanded a few years later and when reformed was named the Golden Spread Gem and Mineral Society.

According to Voelm, "about 25-30 years ago there were only about 400 rock hounds in the United States--but now there are about 2½ million rock hounds and hobbyists who cut and polish stones for their own amusement and entertainment." He mentioned several local persons who are rock hobbyists. In addition he related that the rock hounds now have several monthly magazines.

He commented that "early settlers called any rock that would strike a spark a flint--but this is not necessarily so as much of what was called flint is really chalcedony or agate stone."

Voelm estimated that he has about 60 tons of rough rock in his outdoor sale yard, much of which is purchased for garden rock, and by rock hounds for their own hobbies.

He also selects favorites from the rocks to be ground on his own special equipment and polished for sale to customers. He displays his finished items in a 40 x 40 showroom which is located in the same building with his three bedroom home.

J. G. 'WHITEY' VOELM, a rock hound, is shown with some polished stones in his showrooms west of Canyon.

Speaking of his rocks, Voelm stated that "he has never found two rocks alike yet."

He said that he makes custommade jewelry in special mountings on order and has orders from tourists who stop by the establishment.

Among the unusual rocks he has found are one which polished out to show a "fishing lake" and one complete with "embossed figure 5." These have special meanings for Voelm in his collection.

He also is presently working on a United States map for his private collection with each state cut to measure and polished from a rock native to that state.

He said that "rocks must be cut differently to show the rock patterns--some require cutting across the grain, while others require cutting with the grain."

"Many people want blue rocks for their fish bowls," said Voelm, and for this purpose he sells a bright blue glass because the rock with blue in it is composed of a copper content which will kill the fish.

He also has inside the showroom a "dark room" where he keeps a variety of rock which may be observed by flourescent lighting to show the colors of the rock.

In addition to Voelm's rock collection, he has a collection of antiques carefully selected for his shop primarily including china and cut glass.

The retirement business is being expanded now to include an overnight camping site at the rear of the main building.

Voelm likes to share his enthusiasm and love for rocks with neighbors and friends and his early love for rocks has now been made into a retirement income as well as a hobby.

bably any leakage has been washed off," Collins said as he ran the instrument along the outside of the tube.

Next, he checked with another instrument for gamma and beta particles. Again the needle moved slightly.

"It's safe enough," he said. "It's clean."

His pronouncement, though it brought a sigh of relief, didn't solve the sheriff's problem.

"I've never seen a container like this before," Collins said. "It's apparently used to carry material. But, it was very low energy. It may have been a liquid."

"The main thing I'm interested in is the origin of the thing and how it got down there," the sheriff said.

Johnston said he worried that there might be more tubes, perhaps some containing higher energy radioactivity, in the canyons.

The sheriff said, too, that whatever was in the tube could be radioactive.

Collins at first said he would take the tube to Pantex for dismantling and inspection, but decided to take the tube apart in the sheriff's office.

Again donning his gloves, Collins pulled the top from the tube.

The tube proved to be a glass vial containing a white, powdery substance. It smelled like a weak battery.

Although the mystery of what the tube contained was solved, Johnston was left with the mystery of the tube's origin, its use and its location in Palo Duro Canyon.

is unable to get invoices for merchandise already purchased and therefore is unable to display the articles.

She said she can't call New York for the invoices because telephone lines are tied up to that area.

The Canyon News since the start of the New York strike has been unable to receive national advertising through the mail.

Unless a nation-wide strike is called, mail service at West Texas State University will be little affected. Brad Castleman, employee of the post office at WTSU said the office is leased from the federal government and that he is a state employee.

Unless there is a national strike, Castleman said he will be busy at the WTSU branch office.

workers received a 4 percent salary hike.

"The other branches of civil service got a 16 per cent raise," he said. "Our's was just a token."

Lisle feels like a lot of postal workers were just tired of waiting for salary reforms.

"It's pretty frustrating," he says.

The strike itself is what has placed Lisle in the middle.

"I don't think we'll go out until we're forced to and then it won't be because we want to. It'll be because there'll be nothing for us to do," he said. "I don't think any body here is in sympathy with the strike. I know I don't desire it for any reason."

Lisle would rather stand behind his word than behind a cause.

"I signed an agreement not to strike when I first started," he said. "They tell me that's not legal now, but it should be.

"Why should I strike? Should a soldier strike?

"I gave my word I wouldn't strike. If a man's word is no good, you can't trust the man."

He doesn't like the idea of using force to accomplish an end.

"I don't think anything accomplished by force is worth it," he said. "I've seen it tried time and again and I've never seen it worth it."

The strike has caused him to re-evaluate his position within the carriers union.

"I never joined for a strike," he said. "This makes me inclined to re-evaluate a little."

however, where women's division membership is open to anyone--housewife or professional woman--and membership is about 300.

"We want to be like Lubbock," she said. "We want all women eligible to become members of the chamber."

Knowles suggested that, unlike Hereford, the Canyon division allow membership for only the $12 fee.

In Hereford, women who join the women's division are charged $10 plus an additional $36 to join the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

"That's awful expensive," he said. "We need members in the chamber of commerce, but I feel like this organization could benefit the chamber in many other ways. I feel like by keeping the dues down, we can get ladies interested where the city will benefit."

In outlining the physical program of the division, Mrs. Nicholas said there will be six committees--beautification, banquet, fine arts, public affairs, membership and welcoming.

She said the general membership of the division will meet four times a year, but that committees will meet whenever possible.

She said committee chairmen will be named at the April 7 meeting.

Named to the by-laws committee, which is to form a charter for the division were Martha Warren, Mary Mardis, Christine McGlason and Shirley White.

Named to the nominating committee, which will nominate officers, were Jo Carroll Lindsey, Bitsy Downing, Mrs. Eddie Knowles, Ella Brown and Jody Magness.

gress. However, he noted that two or three families might find themselves in need.

He said he thought the matter had been dropped after he had told Judge Brown the pauper's oath requirement would disqualify Pantex workers.

He said that he and fellow union members were embarrassed and angered when the matter was placed on the Randall County commissioners court agenda and appeared on television and in the newspapers.

Judge Brown said Stoner requested that the matter be placed on the court's agenda. "I certainly wouldn't have put it on there if he hadn't insisted on it," Brown declared.

Commissioners court Monday let bids to Wayne Wirt Electric of Canyon for installation of air conditioners in the offices of the county surveyor and the district clerk. Wirt will install the two air conditioners for $625.60.

The court considered bids of three data processing companies for keeping the Randall County tax roll, receipts, monthly reports and delinquent tax statements.

Commissioners will meet at 10 o'clock this morning in the commissioners room at the court house to study procedures and samples from each company bidding.

Mrs. Audrey Bruse, tax assessor collector, told the court that an increase of $2,000,000 in tax valuation and $23,962 in revenue is expected in 1970 when the tax roll should reach $56,059,830.

There were six bidders on three cars for the Randall County Sheriff's Department. These bids were tabled until Thursday.

Commissioners renewed a fire contract with the city of Canyon. The contract provides for payment of $100 a fire call answered by the Canyon Fire Department outside Canyon city limits during the next year. It is identical to the contract now existing between the two sub-divisions of government.

Commissioners Bill Butler and Glenn Dowlen were appointed to represent the court at a meeting with the Highway Commission in Austin April 1.

Black said the flags promoting Canyon will be flown from staffs fixed to brackets on utility poles from Highway 60 on 11th Street to Fourth Avenue and from 11th Street along Fourth to the east city limits and from city limits to city limits on 23rd Street.

Black said there will be 121 flags displayed continuously through July and August and that they will be used to advertise Canyon tourist attractions.

The Tourist Development Committee will meet next Tuesday to finalize plans and set dates for a city-wide drive to raise funds to finance the three programs.

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Bolton, Mrs. Vera Beasley, Mrs. Ophelia Murphy and Mrs. Girtha Burgess were in Clovis, New Mexico Monday for funeral services of their second cousin, Jim Fuller.

"There are other sources of funding, such as the Navy, Army, NASA, the National Science Foundation or the Atomic Energy Commission," he said. "All users of helium are also interested in research."

The vice president said he feels chances of the transfer of reserach still "looks good."

"We're not putting all our eggs in one basket," he said. "If the Department of the Interior doesn't do it, maybe someone else will."

Dr. Smith said one feasible way of acquiring funds would be to reduce the helium center to its individual research projects and strive to obtain financing for each individual project under some governmental entity.

Currently, there are 14 different research projects at the center.

He said U. S. Rep. Bob Price is currently setting up interviews for Smith with various government agencies.

Dr. Smith will be in Washington April 6 and 7 to discuss funding of the projects.

Estimated cost to keep the projects going for one year is $840,000.

Dr. Smith said he will still speak to the Amarillo Area Foundation annual meeting Monday, when he will seek enlargement of the Killgore Research Center on campus to allow housing of the helium research.

"I'm not discouraged at all," he said. "I think we'll come out of it with considerably more than we have now--which is nothing."

New Pulpit Approach To Be Undertaken Here

BY LORENA MILLER

The First Presbyterian Church, under the guidance of the Rev. Baldwin J. Stribling, will embark on a new approach to the Sunday morning worship services beginning with the regular church services on Sunday April 5.

"Partners-in-Preaching" by Reuel L. Howe has been adapted by the pastor and several congregational members during six months of planning and study and will be instituted here to give the opportunity to church and members to contribute together in the planning, preparation, delivery, hearing and implementation of the church's sermon.

"I have high hopes and strong convictions that this new program can help the congregation and myself to rediscover our common responsibility for the church's preaching," related Rev. Stribling.

"Each of us has something that the other doesn't have---this does not mean that we must trade places or try to escape our own area of responsibility but it does mean that we need each other. We need that living encounter between persons that permits us to identify our concerns and problems, recognize and admit the barriers to understanding and seek together in a mutually supportive way to make a Christian connection between the world of work and play and the world of worship and prayers," according to Rev. Stribling's church bulletin.

The dialogue sessions between the pulpit and pew will require that the worship and sermon hour take place at the regularly scheduled ten o'clock hour on Sunday morning so that dialogue groups may follow at 11 o'clock.

According to Rev. Stribling, the Christian education committee of the church has recruited 12 members of the church to serve as moderators to lead the dialogue groups each Sunday and to work with the pastor in the planning, preparation and delivery of the sermon. These moderators have already met with the pastor to discuss the areas of concern for preaching and the two adult church school groups have already completed questionaires relating to topics for future sermons in the dialogue.

Rev. Stribling noted that the new program will be directed through a bulletin insert providing the topics, Biblical texts and suggested sources for personal reading for the sermons of the coming month. Also each week the moderators will meet with the pastor to discuss the topic, texts and outline for the coming Sunday's sermon. At these moderator-pastor meetings there will be a discussion of the past week's sermon and at the minister's request this will be an airing ground for his own improvement in communication skills.

"After the morning worship service---the congregation will be dismissed into adult and senior high dialogue groups and to other regular church school classes and will meet then from 11-12 o'clock.

"The moderator of each dialogue group," according to Rev. Stribling, "will lead the group discussion centering around the five questions 1. What did the preacher say to you?, 2. What difference, if any, do you think the message you heard will make to you in your relationships?, 3. In what ways did the preacher's method, language, illustrations and delivery help or hinder you hearing his message?,4. What relation did you see between the worship and the preaching?, and 5. Did you help the preacher preach his sermon?"

After the dialogue group concludes its discussion the moderator will then report its insights and helps to the next meeting of the moderators and the pastor, according to Rev. Stribling.

A few of the advantages seen for the Partners-in-Preaching program, according to Rev. Stribling, would be that the preaching could be better correlated inspiration and instruction, doctrine with daily life, worship with education, tradition with contemporary reality and break down the barriers of communication between the pulpit and the pew.

He also feels that the congregation, by meeting in small groups on a rotating basis, can become much better acquainted and come to know each other as persons.

Another advantage to the program will be the constructive criticism and "feedback" which will be of great assistance to the pastor in future sermon preparation and delivery, according to Rev. Stribling. He noted that the minister could make better use of his professional training and thereby fullfill more adequately his constitutional role as a "teaching elder."

He concluded by relating that he feels the program will be a "greater incentive for participation in both worship and church school education and will allow for better correlation of content and objectives of the worship service and the church school".

Israel Slides For Easter

"He Arose Victorious For You" will be the topic of the Easter Sunday message at First Assembly of God Church in Canyon with Rev. A. J. Pettit in charge.

The service, which begins at 11 a.m., will include a selected series of slides taken by the Pettits on a recent trip to Israel and show the life and places of Christ's ministry from the Garden of Gethsemane, to Calvary and concluding with the empty tomb.

The morning worship will also include special music and songs by Frankie McNew and Wayne Womack; dedication service for infants and special Easter music from the church choir.

Open to the general public, the service will begin at 11 a.m. and will be preceded with Sunday School at 10 a.m.

Lumry Earns Good Grade

William R. Lumry of Canyon has been named a distinguished student at Texas A&M University for having earned at least a 3.25 grade point average from a possible 4.0 grade.

The student honor is given for academic ranking above 3.25 in a minimum of 12 hours during the semester.

Lumry, a freshman mechanical engineer, is the son of Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Raymond H. Lumry of Canyon.

600 New Phone Numbers Set For City Residents

Southwestern Bell is completing the first part of an equipment addition to provide 600 new telephone numbers for Canyon.

Mike Patrick, Southwestern Bell manager, said equipment for 300 numbers to accommodate future growth is being added now and equipment for the remaining 300 numbers will be added this summer.

"This is a major project in our $132,000 construction program for Canyon this year," Patrick said. "We need these new numbers to keep ahead of Canyon's growing demand for telephone service."

He pointed out that the number of telephones here increased by 140 per cent during the 1960s and is expected to increase by more than 40 per cent in the next three years.

"Telephone growth is often a good yardstick of a town's progress," Patrick said. "Canyon's recent and projected growth certainly indicates a healthy rate of progress."
